

In the grass

In the grass there is a whole new world.

There are bugs, twigs and bits of things made into homes.

It is like a whole new universe!

They're building their world the way they want it.

There's trees that blossom,

Plants that bloom, Butterflies flying high, and

Birds in the trees tweeting away.

Trees swaying in the breeze.

Ants run around going in and out, in and out of the ground;

They're scattering around, building their little town,

Around and around they go,

In the grass
