

The Murray River

The Murray River is a very important place to humans and wildlife

For we all need it to survive and all want it to explore.

The Murray river provides food and water for all the wildlife and provides our water supply.

The Murray River to the naked eye is what people call true beauty.

The river water swiftly runs along the curved banks while boats go by, making the water lap up against the river's banks.

A truly beautiful sight is the sun reflecting on the water.

Whatever lives underneath the water is unable to be seen, for the river water is so murky.

The pelicans gliding, swiftly bunny hops cross the water, then gently glide peacefully back onto the water.

Pelicans dive in the water but don't get too wet as water drops roll off their waterproof feathers.

Pelicans are truly beautiful creatures.

The fish of the Murray river are great creatures.

The fish, the pelicans, the water are truly beautiful and do make the Murray more beautiful than EVER!

The Murray River is my home, my country, my Murray River!
